APPENDIX 3.3

Abbreviated Instructions for Administering, Scoring, and Interpreting the Word Recognition, Passage Reading, and Spelling Tests

WORD RECOGNITION TEST

1. Start. Start the test at the preprimer level.
2. Administration. Flash each word for approximately $\frac{1}{2}$ second. If student's response is correct, proceed to next word in the list. If the flash response is incorrect, expose the word for an untimed response. Then proceed to the next word.
3. Recording responses. Mark the score sheet only when an error is made. If the student misreads a word on the flash or untimed presentation, write his or her response in the appropriate column. If the student does not respond to a word, write 0 in the appropriate column. If the student hesitates $\frac{1}{2}$ second or more in responding to a flashed word, write h in the flash column and put a ✓ in the untimed column. The following example shows 3 incorrect responses in the flash column and 2 incorrect responses in the untimed column.

	Flash	Untimed
1. accept	0	asset
2. favor	flavor	0
3. seal
4. buffalo	h	✓
5. slipper

4. Stop. Stop the test when the student's flash score on a given list falls below 50%.
5. Scoring. In scoring the test, start with the flash column. Take off 5% for each error in the flash column and subtract the total from 100. For example, if the student makes 6 errors in the flash column, his flash score is 70% ($6 \times 5\% = 30\%$; $100\% - 30\% = 70\%$).

The untimed score is a cumulative score. Start with the flash score and add 5% for each correct response (✓) in the untimed column. In the preceding example, the student's flash score was 70%; if he read 3 additional words correctly in the untimed column ($3 \times 5\% = 15\%$), his untimed score would be 85%.

6. Interpretation. A score of 70% or better in the flash column indicates that the student has sufficient sight vocabulary to read at that level.

PASSAGE READING INVENTORY

The oral reading passages are administered first, followed by the silent reading passages.

1. Start. Begin the oral reading passages at the highest level at which the student achieved an 80% (or better) score on flash word recognition. In the following example, oral reading would begin at the second-grade level.

	Flash	Oral reading
First grade	95%
Second grade	80%	→ Start
Third grade	60%

2. Administration. Before beginning, explain to the student that she will be reading aloud a few passages and answering some questions. Tell the child to read at her normal speed. Then turn on the tape recorder and leave it on throughout the oral reading testing. Remember to read to the child the brief introductory statements that precede each passage. Also, be sure to record (using a stopwatch) the number of seconds the child takes to read each passage.
3. Recording responses. As the student reads the oral passages, record her errors using the following marking system:

Type of error	Marking procedure	Example
Substitution	Write above	tree the train
Omission	Circle	in(the)water
Insertion	Use a caret and write in	little the puppy ^
Self-correction	Put a ✓ beside error	fin ✓ a fine day
Help from teacher	Write H above word	H impossible task

4. Stop. Stop the oral reading test when the child becomes frustrated. Signs of frustration include a marked increase in word recognition errors, an increase in meaning-change errors, a need for more teacher help, a significant decrease in rate or fluency, and behavioral signs of frustration.
5. Scoring. To obtain the oral reading accuracy score for a given passage, multiply the number of errors (e.g., 10) times the error quotient (e.g., .68) for an error percentage (6.8 or 7%). Then subtract this number from 100% to obtain the oral reading score (100% – 7% = 93%).

To obtain the oral reading rate (wpm), multiply 60 times the number of words in the passage and divide by the number of seconds the child took to read the passage (60 × No. of words ÷ No. of seconds).

Instructions for Word Recognition, Passage Reading, and Spelling Tests (page 3 of 4)

To obtain the oral reading comprehension score, count the number of incorrect responses (e.g., 2) and multiply by 16.6%. Subtract this error percentage (33%) from 100% to obtain the comprehension score (67%). Because there are six questions at the end of most passages (third grade and above), the following chart of precalculated scores may be helpful:

No. of comprehension errors	Comprehension score
0.5	92%
1.0	83%
1.5	75%
2.0	67%
2.5	58%
3.0	50%
3.5	42%
4.0	33%
4.5	25%
5.0	17%
5.5	8%
6.0	0%

6. Interpretation. Oral reading yields three scores: word-reading accuracy, rate, and comprehension. In establishing an oral reading instructional level, all three scores must be considered (see performance criteria at the end of this appendix).

The silent reading passages are administered following the oral reading passages. Start the silent reading one level below the highest level where the child was instructional (or comfortable) in oral reading. Proceed with the silent reading passages until the student scores below 50% on comprehension. Rate and comprehension scores for silent reading are computed in the same manner as was described for oral reading.

SPELLING

1. Start. Start with the first-grade spelling list.
2. Administration. Pronounce each word clearly, use it in a sentence if appropriate, and then say the word again. After the child has spelled each 10-word list, pick up the paper and count the spelling errors. If the child misspells 7 or more of the 10 words, stop the test. If the child misspells 6 or fewer words, proceed to the next list.
3. Scoring. For each list, write the correct spelling beside each misspelled word (this will assist later qualitative analysis). Then multiply the number of errors (e.g., 2) times 10 and subtract this error percentage (20%) from 100% to obtain the spelling score (80%).
4. Interpretation. A score of at least 50% on a spelling list (e.g., fourth grade) indicates that the student has sufficient word knowledge to benefit from instruction at that level.

Note. To number the chart, take the student's normal reading rate (e.g., 75 wpm) and multiply by 2 ($75 \times 2 = 150$). This base rate of 150 words (in 2 minutes) should be placed at the lower left-hand corner of the chart (see *). Then number by 10 as you move up the chart (e.g., 150, 160, 170, 180, and so on) until you reach the top (250 words).

APPENDIX 9.1

Sample Progress Reports to Parents of Children Attending a Reading Clinic

A. FIRST-GRADE BOY READING AT THE PREPRIMER 3 LEVEL

Dear parent,

It has been a pleasure to work with Brad this spring semester. He has worked hard and been cooperative during the tutoring lessons.

Brad's instructional reading level is preprimer 3 (approaching mid-first grade). This means that he is challenged by preprimer 3 materials but has adequate word recognition, fluency, and comprehension to learn and move forward at this reading level. Brad has read in preprimer 2 and preprimer 3 materials this semester at the Reading Clinic. For example:

Mrs. Wishy Washy, Wright Group (preprimer 2)

Tom Is Brave, Rigby (preprimer 2)

Blackberries, Rigby (preprimer 3)

Lucky Goes to Dog School, Rigby (preprimer 3)

One area of strength for Brad is comprehension. He is able to follow the story line and make good predictions forward as he reads. With repeated readings of a story (he reads each story three times), Brad is able to improve the fluency and accuracy with which he reads.

One area Brad needs to improve is his word recognition. He needs to increase his store of known (or sight) words and improve his decoding skill. To this end, we have been working on the a, i, and o short-vowel word families (e.g., cat, hat, flat; man, pan, plan), and he has made progress in reading these short-vowel words. By reading preprimer 2 and 3 stories this semester, Brad has also increased his sight vocabulary, which is now up to 60+ words.

Our recommendation is that Brad return to the Reading Clinic in the summer. He will continue to benefit from the one-to-one instruction we are able to offer. You can support Brad at home by (1) reading aloud good books to him (consult your local librarian for suggestions), and (2) having Brad read to you books his tutor sends home this summer.

Sincerely,

Reading tutor

B. FOURTH-GRADE GIRL READING AT A THIRD-GRADE LEVEL

Dear parent,

It has been a pleasure to work with Daisy this spring semester. She has worked hard and been cooperative during the tutoring lessons.

Daisy's instructional reading level is third grade. This means that she is challenged by third-grade materials but has adequate word recognition, fluency, and comprehension to learn and move forward at this reading level. Daisy has read in late-second-grade and third-grade materials this semester at the Reading Clinic. For example:

Christopher Columbus, Random House (2-2)
The True Story of Pocahontas, Random House (2-2)
Helen Keller, Scholastic (3rd)
The Titanic: Lost . . . and Found, Random House (3rd)

One area of strength for Daisy is comprehension. She understands what she reads and shows ability to make good predictions and draw inferences. Daisy's word recognition—ability to decode new words she meets in text—is also a strength, at least when reading third-grade text.

One area Daisy needs to improve is her reading fluency or reading rate. When reading a text orally the first time, she reads haltingly with many repetitions of words and phrases. We have worked on her fluency using “repeated readings.” In this activity, she reads the same 200–250 word passage four times, each time trying to improve her reading fluency (accuracy and phrasing). Daisy has shown improvement in this oral reading area (she can now read 110 wpm on her final trials), and I believe that the fluency gains are carrying over to silent reading. I have searched for chapter books (late-second-grade and third-grade levels) that she can read at home for enjoyment. Such free reading will eventually improve her fluency and her confidence as a reader.

Our recommendation is that Daisy return to the Reading Clinic in the summer. She will continue to benefit from the one-to-one instruction we are able to offer. You can support Daisy at home by (1) taking her to the public library and having her choose late-second- and third-grade books that are of interest to her (ask the librarian for suggestions), and (2) setting aside a regular time at home for Daisy to read for enjoyment.

Sincerely,

Reading tutor
